ComboEditor	Bug Fix	Image displayed on the control is not of the checked item but the last selected item
		Notes: Since it does not make sense to arbitrarily choose one checked item and display the image from that item, the UltraComboEditor will not pick up the image from any selected or checked items when CheckedListSettings are being used.

It is still possible to apply an image using the control's Appearance.Image property.

GanttView	Bug Fix	Percent complete is calculated differently as task duration changes. Notes: There's not much we can do about this. The PercentComplete property is a float, and it is therefore always going to be imprecise. So the actual value of PercentComplete will always be imprecise. But it would help if you could format the value and remove the digits after the decimal point. This is what the latest version of MS Project seems to do. The UltraGanttview currently allows you to Format the PercentComplete column, but not the PercentComplete value in the tooltip. So the tooltip now picks up the column format. So the column and the tooltip can now be formatted like so: <pre>this.ultraGanttView1.GridSettings.ColumnSettings[TaskField.PercentComplete].Format = "#\\%";</pre>

So the Format property is never used. You must set UseServerFormat to false, either on the grid or the column in order for the format to have any effect. Previously, setting UseServerFormat to false caused the cell to appear blank.
